Congressman Harsha Seeks Re-Election

WILLIAM HARSHA

Congressman William H. Harsha (R-Portsmouth) today officially announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to a ninth consecutive term as Representative from Ohio's Sixth Congressional District.

"We have made great strides in improving the economic and industrial development of our area," said Harsha, "and through my seniority and legislative experience, I hope to continue my contributions to this progress, with particular emphasis on reducing our rate of unemployment."

Now in his sixteenth year in Congress, the former Scioto County Prosecutor was elected to the Eighty-seventh Congress in November 1960.

Of his position as ranking Republican on the important House Public Works and Transportation Committee, Harsha said, "The experience and expertise gained through my work on this committee will enable me to continue my active role in important legislative decisions affecting Southern Ohio and the nation."

The committee has legislative jurisdiction over water pollution; Appalachian development; highway construction and safety; water resources development; economic development; and surface and aviation transportation. Harsha has been a member of the committee throughout his entire House tenure.

He is co-author of the Water Quality Act of 1972, Appalachian Regional Development Act, Economic Development Act, Federal Aid Highway Act, and the Omnibus Highway Safety Act of 1972.

He holds an AB degree from Kenyon College, an LLB degree from Western Reserve University, and an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from Kenyon College.

Harsha has been named Honorary Chairman of Citizens for Highway Safety and has received numerous awards for his contributions to highway safety and improvement, law enforcement, natural resource management, fiscal responsibility in government, and other areas.

"It has been a great honor for me to have served the people of the Sixth District in the House of Representatives, and with their support, I hope to continue this service for another term."

Staats, in a report to Congress dated Jan. 30, said Lockheed has forecast operating profits through 1979 that are "sufficient to maintain the company's stability, but insufficient to liquidate its guaranteed bank loans by the end of 1978 — the maximum time provided by law."

The report also indicated Lockheed's management was worried that publicity about the company's foreign bribes would harm sales overseas.

Staat's revelation followed testimony last week in which A.C. Kitchian, Lockheed's chief operating officer, told a Senate subcommittee details of many payoffs, some of them totaling millions of dollars, to foreign officials in an effort to assure sales of company planes.

Lockheed earlier had admitted paying some $22 million to foreign officials.

Congress, under a 1971 law, authorized a government guarantee of up to $250 million in loans to Lockheed. The loans were to be repaid by the end of 1975 but were renewable for no more than three years. Last May, the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board extended the government guarantee through the end of 1977.

As of Dec. 31, 1975, Lockheed's overall bank loans totaled $595 million. Of that amount, $195 million was guaranteed by the federal government.

North Bend Honors Harrison

NORTH BEND, Ohio (AP) — Most Americans are as familiar with the career of the country's ninth president, as they are with the town of North Bend, Ohio, where one president spent his adult life and another, Benjamin Harrison, spent his childhood.

Yet, with the birthdays of the more prominent Abraham Lincoln and George Washington just around the corner, the residents of this Ohio River community were occupied Monday with honoring their favorite son—William Henry Harrison.

Every year, a ceremony is held on his birthday at the site of his tomb, the only physical reminder that Harrison ever lived in this town of 750 people.

His home burned down some time ago, and Mayor Charles Lehning says the town has stored some of the door frames and windows in a barn somewhere. He says there's talk of opening up a museum someday.

The large monument marking Harrison's tomb gets frequent visits from history buffs who are traveling from historical shrine to historical shrine, Lehning says. Many of the inquiries ask if there's anything else historical to see in North Bend.

Benjamin Harrison, William Henry's grandson and the 23rd president, was born here, "but he married someone from Indiana and left us," Lehning recalls.

Harrison, a popular Whig candidate who sparked the country's imagination with his campaign slogan of "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too," is the oldest man ever to be elected president at age 68.

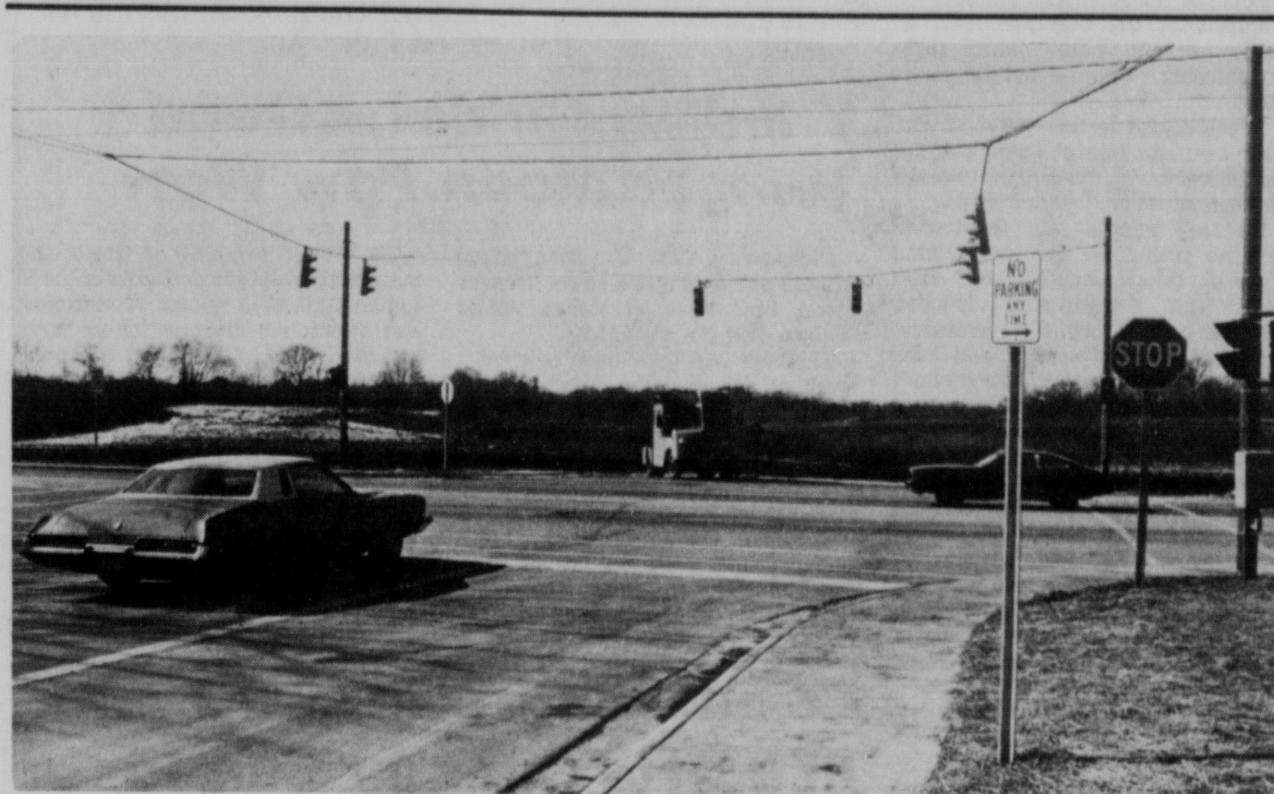

He gave the longest inaugural speech on record—8,445 words—on March 4, 1841, and he ended up having the shortest administration.

He contracted pneumonia during a chilling inauguration day and died in 31 days, leaving the presidency to John Tyler, the first vice president to become president without being elected.

Weather

Cloudy, windy and warmer today with a high in the middle 50s. Mostly cloudy with a chance of showers tonight, temperatures in the middle 30s. Partly cloudy Wednesday, high, middle 40s. Chances of precipitation, 20 per cent today, 50 per cent tonight and 20 per cent Wednesday. High Monday was 43 and the low 37.

Property Tax Relief Bill Heads To Ohio House

KEEP IT SLOW — Circleville Police Chief Robert Temple stationed Ptl. Ron Thompson at the intersection of Nicholas and Clark Drs. yesterday and today to alert motorists to the new traffic and pedestrian-activated signal lights at the intersection. The lights, the final phase in the Nicholas Dr. improvement project, are expected to enhance traffic flow, particularly for school traffic, and add a touch of safety for students walking to either the high school or Nicholas Drive school.

Lights on Nicholas Dr. will remain green unless switched to red by buttons provided for pedestrians at each corner or a buried traffic-activated loop under Clark Dr. for outgoing traffic only. The six lights (one for each lane of traffic) four steel poles (steel was used to eliminate the necessity of guy wires) and pedestrian "walk," "don't walk" lights cost about $11,000. They were installed by the Traf-Way Electric Co. of Lancaster.

Would Curb Inflationary Increases

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A property tax relief bill headed onto the floor of the Ohio House today with approval expected, but with a flurry of political side issues vying for more attention.

GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes late Monday fanned the flames of a growing controversy that stems from his bid to draw new Senate and House districts, apparently to try to topple the current Democratic leadership.

Otherwise, a floor debate was scheduled in the Senate during an unusual morning session of that body on two controversial appointments by Rhodes to the State Racing Commission.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended last week against the confirmation of Commission Chairman Joseph J. LoPresti of Cleveland. Rhodes' appointment of Mel J. Witt, also of Cleveland, was up for a committee roll call prior to the floor session. A 2-2 roll call Monday night was left open until today because of the absence of five committee members.

LoPresti, a former judge, and Witt, a union official, were questioned at their separate confirmation hearings about thousands of free race track passes distributed annually by the commission and staff.

They said, in response to specific questions, that many of the requests for passes came from state lawmakers, although Witt said he "took care of my friends and associates," the same as other commissioners had done in the past.

Their fate hinged on a floor vote in the 33-member Senate.

Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville, and other sponsors predicted House approval of his measure that would give Ohio's homeowners credits on their tax bills when inflationary increases in property values have boosted their tax liabilities.

The bill offers no relief this year for taxpayers now paying or being billed for 1975 property taxes but holds the promise of about $70 million worth of tax relief statewide next year, Johnson said. Ohioans currently shell out about $1 billion a year in property taxes.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said he planned to call a caucus of his 21-member Democratic majority this afternoon to discuss a major measure giving Ohio a new law for acting on consumer rate requests by the state's public utilities.

"If all goes well, we will put the measure up for a vote in the Senate on Wednesday," said Ocasek. He is proponent of the legislation which is designed to check the growth of future rate increases by electric, gas, telephone, and other utilities that are regulated by Ohio's Public Service Commission.

Eye Job Action Against State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees from around Ohio were seeking to set a meeting date for consideration of "a severe job action against the state..." an AFSCME statement said.

William E. Gurnes, AFSCME area director, said the preparations had been provoked by refusal of the department of mental health and mental retardation to recognize a need for problem solving mechanisms at some state institutions.

Gurnes said by problems he meant disregard for employees.

A meeting with Moritz has been scheduled for Wednesday and probably would be held before state AFSCME heads gather, he added.

Remap Board Meet Set Feb. 23

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At least one of the two Democrats on the Republican-controlled apportionment board plans to attend Feb. 23 when GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes convenes the panel in a precarious legal bid to draw new districts for the legislature.

Veteran Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, said Monday night, "Of course, I'm going. He (Rhodes) is the governor of this state."

Calabrese added, however, amid speculation Rhodes could have his plan wired ahead of time, "He's got something up his sleeve. He knows something."

Some Democrats, including Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, maintain Rhodes has no authority to call the five-member board into session. In fact, those Democrats maintain that it doesn't exist except during its function to reapportion the legislature after each federal census.

Rhodes, in his formal call for a meeting, asserted Monday night he is bound by the law to reconvene the board if it is found that existing districts are invalid.

The governor said the present districts violate the Ohio Constitution with several defeats, notwithstanding the fact that a federal judge in 1973 issued an injunction prohibiting all parties in earlier court battles from seeking further litigation in state or federal courts. Rhodes must be careful not to violate that injunction, Democratic legal spokesmen say.

Ocasek noted that the same federal judge, Chief Judge Frank J. Battisti of the northern Ohio U.S. District Court, a Democrat, held that the districts comply with the U.S. Constitution. With regard to whether they comply with state requirements, Ocasek reiterated, "It's been done. It's over with. Besides, it's not up to Jim Rhodes to say what is constitutional."

Rhodes sent letters of formal notice of the meeting to Republican Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton — who along with the governor comprise the majority — to Calabrese and Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson. The auditor wasn't available for comment.

Young is a new addition to the board — if in fact it is being legally convened. He was named by Minority Republican leaders to replace former Rep. Robert A. Manning of Akron, a Republican who no longer is a member of the House.

Manning sat as a minority member when Democrats, under former Gov. John J. Gilligan, drew the existing Senate and House districts in 1971. That plan led to recapture of legislative control (59-40 in the House and 21-12 in the Senate) from Republicans who had held it 16 years.

U.S. Disaster Aid Flows To Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — More than a sixth of Guatemala's population was reported homeless today as the official death toll from the earthquake last week topped 17,000.

President Kjell Eugenio Laugerud told diplomats that the count of casualties in last Wednesday's earthquake had risen to 17,032 dead, 54,825 injured, 221,994 homes destroyed and 1,034,441 of the nation's 6 million people homeless.

It was the worst recorded disaster in Central American history. A catastrophe of the same magnitude in the United States, where the population is 34 times as large, would result in more than 575,000 dead, nearly 1,865,000 injured and 35 million homeless.

Relief supplies from many nations flowed into Guatemala City and on into the stricken countryside.

There were complaints from many localities but "distribution of relief supplies is far better coordinated than in any other recent disaster I can recall," said Brian Moss of the U.S. Foreign Disaster Relief Office.

Col. Guillermo Echeveria of the national relief committee, said 100 armed troops were sent into four villages Monday to control food distribution.

"There have been disturbances but nothing serious," he said, denying reports that a helicopter crew was attacked and all the craft's cargo of food stolen at San Andres Itzapa, 50 miles north of Guatemala City.

Laugerud met with the diplomatic corps to discuss additional aid.

Moss said U.S. government aid so far totaled more than $1.5 million and could reach $5 million. By 4 p.m. Monday, 31 U.S. military flights delivered 500 tents, a 15-kilowatt generator to power a 200-bed hospital, 12 3,000-gallon water tanks with pumps, 16 helicopters, ambulances, a 100-bed field hospital, doctors, communications equipment, 500 pints of plasma, 5,000 doses of tetanus vaccine and large quantities of other medicines.

Private U.S. relief agencies have committed more than $13 million in short-term aid, a report from Washington said. The U.S. Embassy said these organizations have already delivered 47 tons of food and 11 tons of medicine.

Patty Hearst Tells Of Fear, Degradation With SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Weaving a chilling saga of fear and degradation, Patricia Hearst says her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers forced her to embrace violent revolution and enslaved her mind with the belief she would never escape the terrorist underground.

Fighting back tears, Miss Hearst finally told her story to the world Monday in testimony at her bank robbery trial. It was a bizarre account of weeks in darkness, sexual assault, months of living with the recurring threat of death and a night of watching some of her most vicious tormentors die in flames.

Testifying with the jury absent, she said she took part in the robbery only out of fear of death and said she never surrendered because remaining SLA members threatened to stalk her for the rest of her life if she did. She was captured last Sept. 18.

With a whispery voice that was barely audible at times, the pale newspaper heiress said flight was futile as two surviving SLA members continued to carry on the legacy of those who died — to imprison her forever in a mental dungeon.

"Where could I go?" she asked several times, saying the SLA convinced her that she had been abandoned by her family and that the FBI wanted her dead.

Miss Hearst renounced all her taped communiques from the SLA as products of coercion, disclaimed her celebrated love for slain SLA member Willie Wolfe as a farce and said she was forced to help rob a bank and later tell a teen-ager that she acted freely. "They told me I would be killed," was her simple, direct explanation of many of her actions. She said she was threatened with death "hundreds of times."

Miss Hearst, 21, took the stand at a special hearing at her bank robbery trial as the defense sought to suppress all evidence of her movements after the April 15, 1974, bank robbery.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, encountering continued resistance from profit takers.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Alan Greenspan, the chief White House economic adviser, repeated to newsmen this morning his view that the economic recovery was in its "moderately early stages" and potentially could last for a very long time.

But the effect of such optimism seemed to be counter-balanced in the market by a continuing inclination among investors to nail down some profits from the record-breaking rally that took place in January.

Today's early prices included Rite Aid, down 1/4 at 17 1/4; Gulf Oil, up 1/4 at 24 1/4; RCA, up 1/4 at 26 1/4, and Northwest Airlines, ahead 1/4 at 29 1/4.

Economy Top Issue, Gallup Says

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Opinion pollster George Gallup told a Miami University crowd of 400 Monday night that the economic situation looms as the biggest factor in the 1976 presidential election.

Gallup, president of Gallup Polls Inc. and the American Institute of Public Opinion, said that, historically, incumbent presidents have been at their lowest periods of popularity in times of recession and low employment.

Gallup took issue with the public media often giving an unbalanced account of the American situation by emphasizing the negative. Yet, he said, current polls show some "frightening" things about the public mood.

"People tend to feel satisfied with their own situation at home but are disillusioned with many aspects of the national situation," Gallup said.

He said people feel frustrated because politicians are not talking about the things which the polls show people want. He said these included electoral reform, crime prevention, a period of national service and "the whole idea of release from the ghetto."

He added, "before we bemoan our fate, let's ask ourselves these questions: Are we participating in the political process? Are we doing a proper job with our children? Are we studying the issues and reading up on them? Are we doing what we should in life—in the proper job? Are we putting our religious beliefs into practice? And our those of us in communication trying to create a new national mood?"

Gallup said only six in 10 vote, half are unable to name their congressman, only few know what he stands for and young people seem to be forfeiting their opportunity to try to bring about political change. He said surveys show half the people would go into another career if they had to start over.

Rites Held For Cloud

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Montgomery County administrator Thomas Cloud, 41, who died Friday of a heart attack.

Cloud, who served in a variety of public service posts, including county commissioner and Wayne Township trustee, ran unsuccessfully in 1974 for the Republican nomination for state auditor. He lost to Roger W. Tracy Jr.

Former county Administrator Paul Stockert said Cloud talked continually about innovations in county government. He said Cloud was interested in efforts to link city and county administration in such places as Indianapolis, Ind., and Nashville, Tenn.

"I think once he accepted the job as county administrator he never gave much thought to politics," said Stockert.

Cloud, an industrial engineer, was a graduate of the General Motors Institute. He was a sales coordinator at GM's Delco-Moraine division here until he quit to become county commissioner in 1969.

Remembering his working schedule, his mother, Audrey Cloud, said she told him recently, "Tom, you can't do this, you just have to slow down...."

"He died doing what he wanted to do...I think that has some importance," she said.

Hepatitis Continues

CINCINNATI (AP) — More cases of infectious hepatitis are expected in the outbreak at Cincinnati Oakley School.

Cincinnati Health Commissioner Dr. Arnold Leff reported the number of cases has increased at the school to 17 with three more reported over the weekend.

"I believe that all of the children were infected at the same time," Leff said, adding that the incubation period of the liver ailment is 2-6 weeks.

Cause of the outbreak remains unknown, Leff said.

Meanwhile, Leff said, there is little anyone can do except comply with basic cleanliness measures at the school. Families of the infected children were given injections against the disease, he said.

The water system was given a clean bill of health, he said.

The health department reported four other cases at other schools but these were said to be unrelated to the Oakley School outbreak, Leff said.

Guests of the Pickaway Plains Y Indian Guides were the braves from the Chillicothe tribes and the newly formed Marysville Branch of the Columbus YMCA.

A winter recruitment and orientation meeting for all boys and their dads is scheduled 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the YMCA. Another orientation meeting is scheduled for the Ashville Village park center 3:30 p.m. Feb. 22.

Couple Wed, Divorced, Rewed In Battle Over Income Taxes

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — One good divorce deserves another — as far as David and Angie Boyter are concerned.

The Boyters' second marriage is only a month old, but already they say they are contemplating their second divorce. Their first divorce was in Haiti Dec. 8, ending a nine-year marriage. They remarried a month later.

Their behavior is the result of anger — not directed at each other, but at the American income tax system. The Boyters say the system favors single persons over married taxpayers.

"We did it more for principle than anything else," Mrs. Boyter said. "We just kept getting madder and madder each year."

Both Boyters work for the federal government and earn about $23,000 each annually.

Mrs. Boyter estimates their 1975 taxes as a married couple would be about $10,300, regardless of whether they filed a joint or single return. If they were single, she says, each would pay about $4,500, a total of $9,000. The $1,300 difference added up to divorce for them.

"About three years ago they gave a tax break to single persons," Mrs. Boyter said. "But that doesn't apply to married persons filing separately."

"And then, with last year's tax rebate we got rooked again. If we had been two single people we would have gotten back about $200 each. As a married couple we just got $100. I think that was the last straw."

"If they don't change the laws, I have every intention of getting a divorce again this year."

It is possible for a couple earning about equal salaries to save some money by filing as single persons, said

Rail Signal Said OK

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP) — A National Transportation Safety Board spokesman says there has been no indication that a stop signal was not working when two Penn Central freight trains collided head-on near here Thursday.

NTSB investigator Elmer Garner said, "We cannot be certain that the signal was indeed working," adding that tests have shown no problem with it.

Four men were killed and two were injured when the engines slammed into each other, exploded and burned.

Garner said a final report will be prepared after the board sits in on the railroad's own investigation and testimony has been taken from witnesses.

USDA Survey Scheduled In County City Board To Meet Thursday

MILLARD DERN

Pickaway County Farmers Asked to Help in USDA Survey: The production costs faced by Pickaway County farmers and other agricultural producers across the State and Nation have advanced significantly in recent years, especially for energy and fertilizer.

Millard Dern, enumerator for the USDA, will conduct the survey in the county.

The full impact of changes in farm production expenditures is the goal of the nationwide survey set for February by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Homer Carter, Statistician in Charge for Ohio Crop Reporting Service points out that during February several Pickaway County farm operators will be asked to take part in the survey by responding to questions about their production expenditures. The questions will be posed by interviewers trained by the Ohio Crop Reporting Service.

The survey results will provide a current measure of goods and services used in agricultural production. This information will aid in providing an accurate gauge of net farm income to show agriculture's full contribution to the economies of Ohio and the Nation.

The survey will also help identify production needs and establish priorities for energy and other input requirements for agriculture.

Carter emphasized that all survey information collected in Pickaway County during the interviews will be kept confidential and only State and national summaries will be issued.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, encountering continued resistance from profit takers.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off almost a point in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Couple Wed, Divorced, Rewed In Battle Over Income Taxes

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — One good divorce deserves another — as far as David and Angie Boyter are concerned.

The Boyters' second marriage is only a month old, but already they say they are contemplating their second divorce. Their first divorce was in Haiti Dec. 8, ending a nine-year marriage. They remarried a month later.

Their behavior is the result of anger — not directed at each other, but at the American income tax system. The Boyters say the system favors single persons over married taxpayers.

"We did it more for principle than anything else," Mrs. Boyter said. "We just kept getting madder and madder each year."

Both Boyters work for the federal government and earn about $23,000 each annually.

Mrs. Boyter estimates their 1975 taxes as a married couple would be about $10,300, regardless of whether they filed a joint or single return. If they were single, she says, each would pay about $4,500, a total of $9,000. The $1,300 difference added up to divorce for them.

"If they don't change the laws, I have every intention of getting a divorce again this year."

It is possible for a couple earning about equal salaries to save some money by filing as single persons, said

David Estey, a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service's Baltimore office.

He said Congress passed the Revenue Act of 1971 to bring rates for single persons in line with the rates for married couples.

In some income brackets, it is cheaper to file as a single person, he added, but there is a question whether the tax saving is worth the inconvenience and expense of a divorce.

The Boyter's divorce in Haiti cost about $1,100 — including air fare, hotel and lawyer fees.

Social Security Plan Studied By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's proposals for a Social Security payroll tax hike and Medicare changes face close scrutiny in Congress where top Democrats back other ideas or want to see the fine print on Ford's plan.

"I don't look for much change (in existing law) by this Congress," House Speaker Carl Albert replied when asked about chances for enactment of the recommendations that Ford formally proposed Monday.

Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee's panel on Social Security, said taxes should be cut in the payroll area, rather than raised as Ford suggests.

Burke's plan, in turn opposed by the Ford administration, would involve using the Treasury's general tax revenue to pick up one-third of the financial burden of Social Security. That would turn what presently is a half-and-half tax on workers and their employers into a three-way split by adding the government as a financial helper.

The President's proposal to extend Medicare coverage for catastrophic illnesses was criticized Monday by Nelson H. Cruikshank, head of the National Council of Senior Citizens.

He said health insurance should "protect the great majority of the covered population against the most common risk — not just the exceptional case." He cited a cartoon depicting a man reading a health insurance policy and telling his wife, "Look, honey, we get $50,000 if we are run over by a herd of elephants on Fifth Avenue."

USDA Survey City Board To Meet Thursday

MILLARD DERN

Pickaway County Farmers Asked to Help in USDA Survey: The production costs faced by Pickaway County farmers and other agricultural producers across the State and Nation have advanced significantly in recent years, especially for energy and fertilizer.

Millard Dern, enumerator for the USDA, will conduct the survey in the county.

The full impact of changes in farm production expenditures is the goal of the nationwide survey set for February by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Horner Carter, Statistician in Charge for Ohio Crop Reporting Service points out that during February several Pickaway County farm operators will be asked to take part in the survey by responding to questions about their production expenditures. The questions will be posed by interviewers trained by the Ohio Crop Reporting Service.

The survey results will provide a current measure of goods and services used in agricultural production. This information will aid in providing an accurate gauge of net farm income to show agriculture's full contribution to the economies of Ohio and the Nation. The survey will also help identify production needs and establish priorities for energy and other input requirements for agriculture.

Carter emphasized that all survey information collected in Pickaway County during the interviews will be kept confidential and only State and national summaries will be issued.

City Board To Meet Thursday

The Circleville Board of Education is scheduled to meet in regular session Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. Among the items on the agenda are a curriculum revision, addition to the substitute teacher list, approval of Title IV funds, adoption of the 1976-77 school calendar and the adoption of placement procedures for the state funded and state approved special education programs.

Two requests for appeals to disciplinary action will also be heard at the meeting along with the requests for two students to attend the city schools on tuition basis.

Four staff members including the superintendent are requesting leave to attend professional meetings. The board will hear three reports on the school system.

In routine action, the board will act on providing supplemental tutoring for six students and home instruction for one student. The date for kindergarten registration will also be established.

Approval will be needed for the advertisement for bids for a 66-passenger bus to replace a 1968 model, for the employment of an architectural firm to replace the floor in the junior high auxiliary gym, "the pit", and for remodeling the junior high principal's and guidance office.

A final item on the advanced agenda sent to the board members by the superintendent is the employment of a girls softball coach in the spring if enough interest is indicated to form a team.

A Page Of Opinion

Winter, Where Is Thy Sting?

As the days of February move along, the minds and hearts of men turn to spring. Surely, surely, the miserable rain, ice, snow and blisteringly cold winds cannot long endure.

February, when it comes to weather, is a complete failure. The thrill of battling the elements is long gone. Fighting slick sidewalks and frozen garage doors fails to enthrall. The utility bills, as large as the mortgage, come in a never-ending stream.

Granted, spring does show a few hints now and then, but not often enough and not long enough. Really, it is not a hint of spring, but merely winter recoiling to deliver another low blow.

Perhaps the most fortunate thing about February is that it is the shortest month of the year, with only 29 days even in leap year. After a continuing battle of several weeks, one can see the end of the tunnel. And what bursts upon the scene?

Good grief, here comes March!

Soft Words Will Win

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — In this, the age of liberation, the voices of too many women have become strident.

This is unfortunate because stridency in women has, quite suddenly, lost impact and influence.

The phenomenal recording success of Olivia Newton-John, a singer whose voice is sweet, gentle and yummy-girlish, is symptomatic of the public's yearning for change.

The nation's eardrums are polluted and, in an election year, are doomed to become even more so. As a consequence, say some speech experts, the surest way to attract attention and make your ideas heard today is to talk quietly. Slowly. And calmly.

In other words, verbally speaking, carry a soft stick, and wave it lightly.

"I don't care how lovely you are, you won't be viewed as lovely if your voice is out of character," speech authorities say. "To capture people's attention — particularly the attention of male people — a woman should keep her voice down, in tone, pace and nasality."

How to do it? Here are some tests and exercises...

First, hear yourself as others hear you. No need to tape-record your voice and listen to an excruciating playback. Simply go off in a corner and cup your hands behind your ears. Now repeat distinctly, so that the sound will bounce off the walls into your ear flaps: "The seething sea ceaseth and it sufficeth me." (This may also be an effective test of your dentures.)

If your voice sounds like a nailfile streaking across a frying pan, do not panic. There are procedures for correcting it.

Instruction No. 1 is to slow down. Speech therapists have long agreed that the major vocal fault among women is that they speak too rapidly. In a group, they tend to pick up one another's tempo. And the voices inevitably grow higher in pitch as the speed and competition increase.

So cool the speed. "In a gathering, you can double-talk if you want to — but if you do it slowly enough, people will look at you with interest," therapists have claimed.

An easy way to check your speed rate is to get out a stopwatch and a book. Read aloud and time yourself. A "moderate" rate of speech is considered to be approximately 126 words a minute. But if you can talk even slower, without sounding boring, so much the better.

After you've trained yourself to speak slowly, test your vibrations. Hold your nose and repeat "Howard Menninger." You should feel a vibration in your nose only during the "Menninger" — because the only three sounds which properly shudder are schnozz are "m," "n" and "ng." If your nose vibrates on any other tones, your speech is too nasal. Work on getting your voice down out of your respiratory track.

Once you have de-vibrated the wrong syllables, investigate the level of your voice. Here is an old advice for doing so: Hold a lighted candle four inches from your mouth and repeat distinctly, "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers." If the candle blows out, you're talking too loud. If you run out of breath before "peppers" you're not regulating your diaphragm. If you flub the line altogether, go to the foot of the class.

As any speech master will tell you, an unregulated diaphragm results from flabby muscle tone. To check your lazy muscles, try the old technique of putting one hand on your diaphragm and shouting "Boom!" at the nearest wall. Did it bounce (the diaphragm, not the wall)?

If it did not bounce, that's bad. Here is an exercise the speech therapists suggest for correcting the condition. Lie flat on the floor on your back, with a heavy book or two on your diaphragm. Now yell, "Home, hy, he, ho, hoo!"

This either will strengthen your diaphragm — or it will bring a man running to your aid.

In the event he is not wearing a white coat and carrying a straight jacket, you will already have accomplished your mission...

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was like walking off a cliff," said the builder, describing how the depression in housing hit his company in 1974. "The sales were there one day, gone the next."

The speaker was Frank Mackle Jr., president of the Deltona Corp., which has erected and sold 30,000 housing units in communities it developed throughout Florida.

His experience was matched around the country by other builders, large and small, many of whom went bankrupt. Those who survived did so by analyzing their problems and adjusting to the new realities.

As a result, a promising new market may be developing for home buyers, despite high interest rates and a generally less than bullish outlook for the industry. The new market should be better attuned to demand.

"This recession has been extremely good for our future well being," said Mackle, speaking of the nation as well as his company, which tumbled into a deficit after many years of steadily rising sales and profits.

Although its income still hasn't fully recovered, Deltona last year sold 29 per cent more homes than in the previous year, a total of 678, an increase resulting almost entirely from the introduction of lower priced units.

Deltona's experience and its reaction to it was matched in smaller ways by other builders around the country, who now realize that housing prices must be returned to the pocketbook reality.

It might seem preposterous that builders would forget this principle of a free market, but they did. So did some car makers. While it is true that builders were presented with rising costs for land, labor and materials, they failed to make economies where economies could be made.

"We had been basic builders," said Mackle, "and then we went to building houses for $35,000 and up. We made a hell of a mistake." Buyers would have to have incomes of $20,000, cut most of the potential buyers were retirees.

"We always used to give the buyer what he wanted," said Mackle. "Dad (Frank Mackle Sr., who began operation in Nashville 65 years ago) said, Don't build monuments to yourself, build what the public wants and can pay for."

When sales stopped in December 1974, Mackle executives searched for an explanation. In 1962, they recalled, Deltona sold a minimum house for $6,900. This was the basis for much of the company's enormous success in the 1960s.

Back to the drawing board they went, and soon came up with a basic, 650-foot, insulated, easily expandable house costing $17,800 for one bedroom and bath, air conditioning and heating, 7,500-foot lot included.

The story of how prices could be cut provides an example of what other builders around the country are attempting to do in order to restore the market, from which most Americans are excluded because of price.

Taft Announces Re-Election Bid

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, today began his campaign for re-election by pledging to continue his fight against big spending and big government.

"I will continue to support programs which will help those who need help. But I will continue to fight those programs which do little more than fatten those who govern," Taft said during a speech at Cincinnati's Lunken Airport.

The early-morning press conference was the first of six stops around the state for the 58-year-old Cincinnati attorney, who began his political career in 1955.

Taft also scheduled stops in Columbus, Cleveland, Youngstown, Toledo and Dayton.

Man Finally Gets Medal From War

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A medal earned while flying combat missions with the 14th Air Force over China more than 30 years ago has finally been picked up by a Mansfield man. Since his 1945 discharge Robert E. Luman had been trying to track down the headquarters of the 14th Air Force Association, composed of China-Burma-India Theater veterans of World War II.

Luman finally got in contact with the organization through a newspaper article sent him by his sister in Zanesville. The story not only provided the whereabouts of the organization but revealed the existence of a medal he did not know he had qualified for.

The award—the China War Memorial Medal—has become better known as the "lost decoration" of World War II. It was authorized by the Chinese government near the end of the war, but the rush to return home apparently jumbled the records of those who were to receive it.

Some veterans had notations in their service records listing the award, but none had ever seen it. Last year, after persistent research by the veterans organization, the medals were distributed to many Americans. Luman learned of his eligibility through the newspaper article.

Now a sales engineer for Ohio Brass Co., the Zanesville native adds the Chinese medal to the list of awards he earned, including the Flying Cross.

He plans to attend annual conventions of the association, although he said he'll skip this year's get-together which is in Taiwan.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1976. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1763, France ceded Canada to England as the Treaty of Paris was signed, ending the French and Indian war.

On this date:

In 1828, the South American patriot, Simon Bolivar, became ruler of Colombia.

In 1840, England's Queen Victoria married Prince Albert.

In 1846, members of the Mormon faith began an exodus to the West from Nauvoo, Illinois.

In 1939, the Japanese occupied Hainan Island off the south coast of China.

In 1962, the Soviet Union exchanged the captured American U-2 pilot Gary Francis Powers for a Soviet spy held by the United States, Rudolf Abel.

In 1964, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the most far-reaching civil rights bill ever considered by the Congress.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson proposed a multibillion dollar Food for Freedom program to help needy nations.

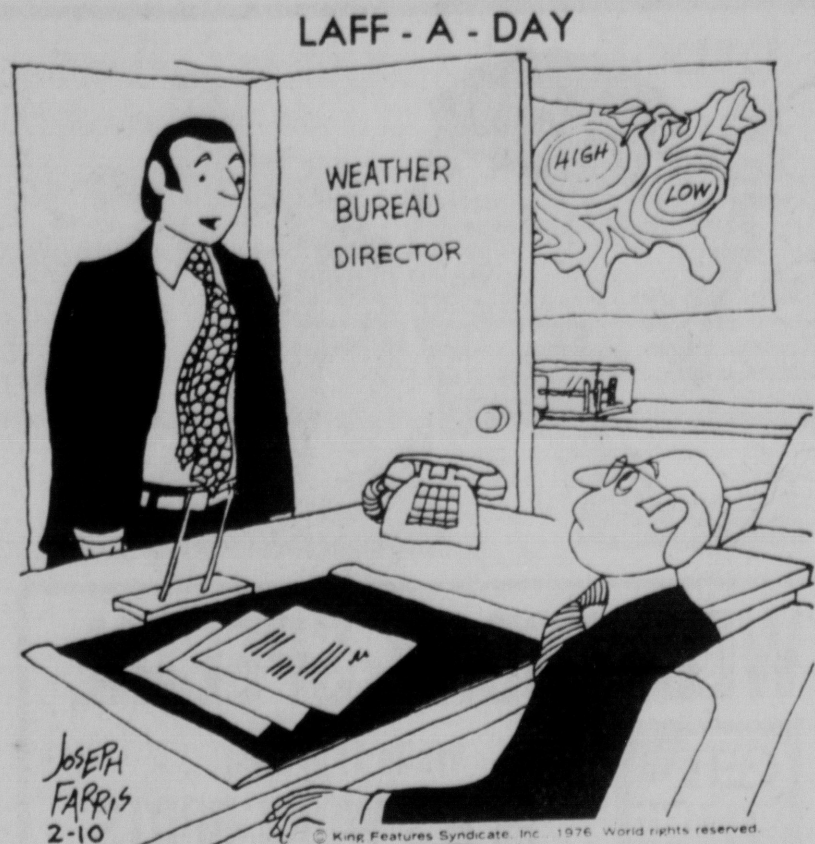

Five years ago: The Cambodian head of state, Lon Nol, suffered a stroke, and his right side was reported paralyzed.

One year ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in Israel to begin another round of Mideast peace talks.

Today's birthdays: Opera singer Leontyne Price is 49. Actress Judith Anderson is 78.

Thought for today: To speak kindly does not hurt the tongue — a French proverb.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, at Cambridge, Mass. General George Washington, whose troops were short of arms, asked the New York Safety Committee to send him any guns confiscated from Tories.

"Thought I'd tell you. There's a 65 per cent chance of my being ill tomorrow."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I got adhesions after a gall bladder operation. Can you explain why this happens? Do adhesions get worse?

Mrs. B. A., S.C.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Adhesions are small bands of firm, fibrous tissue. These bands can occur after surgery anywhere within the abdomen.

Infection or inflammation of the thin lining that surrounds the abdominal cavity is sometimes followed by adhesions.

Adhesions do not always follow abdominal surgery. Some people seem to be more prone to adhesions than others. The delicacy with which surgery is performed today is the major reason why adhesions occur so much less frequently than they formerly did.

The only time that adhesions present a problem is when they surround a portion of the intestinal tract and interfere with its normal function.

Basically, however, adhesions that produce no symptoms are rarely dangerous.

Do doctors still believe in the theory of "focus of infection"?

Mr. T. B. V., Mich.

Dear Mr. V.:

The teeth, the gums, the sinuses, the tonsils, the appendix and the gall bladder may harbor bacteria.

Sometimes these germs may enter the bloodstream, travel to a distant part of the body, and implant themselves in an organ.

Those doctors who subscribe to the theory of "focus of infection" believe that some forms of arthritis, bladder infections and kidney disease may be explained in this way.

Whether or not one "believes" in this theory is not nearly as important as what one should do about it. For it is undeniable that infection anywhere in the body should be treated and eliminated.

Is massage a good way to lose weight?

Miss L. K., Calif.

Dear Miss K.:

It is a misconception to believe that excess weight and fat beneath the skin can be eliminated by rubbing and massage.

It is true that massage can give one an invigorating feeling and better muscle tone. But do not delude yourself into believing that this is a reducing technique. Despite the many new ideas that appeal to those anxious to lose weight, a single law is undeniable:

The loss of weight depends entirely on the reduction of the caloric intake.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

Recent allegations regarding the 1975 Child and Family Services Act are based on misleading information. Charges quoted denying parental control and guidance of children do not appear anywhere in this bill. The alarming quotations on the unsigned fact sheet come from a British document.

Briefly, Senator Mondale's Child and Family Services Act offers to families on a totally voluntary basis access to health, education and child care services which they want for their children but can't afford. It offers funds for prenatal health care, early medical screening and treatment to detect and remedy handicapping conditions, and day care services for working mothers. The bill specifically limits eligibility for these services to "children whose parents or guardians request such services."

A copy of the bill can be examined at the County Extension office. Supporters of this bill include, among others, the United Methodist Church, U.S. Catholic Conference, the Baptist and Lutheran Churches, and the National Education Association. In spite of these endorsements, honest people may disagree about the bill's merits and cost. Arguments should be based on research facts, not hearsay!

DENNIS and SHARYN BLECHA
376 Meadow Lane

Dear Editor,

During the past few months, there has been a wide distribution of anonymous pamphlets in our county concerning HR 2966.

The February, 1976 issue of the National Education Association's "Reporter" carried the following article concerning this bill and pamphlet.

I'm not advocating the passage or defect of this bill but I am asking the Herald to reprint this article for the readers' consideration.

DON R. FORQUER
255 Glenn
Ashville, Ohio

Following is the article as it appeared in the "Reporter":

A vicious propaganda campaign against the pending Child and Family Services Act (HR 2966, S 626) is being waged across the country. Unattributed flyers full of distortions and untruths are being circulated in churches, shopping centers, and news media. The attack on the bill repeats much of the rhetoric used at the time President Nixon vetoed the similar Child Development Act of 1971.

The flyers condemn the bill as a design for imposing "the Soviet-style system of communal child-rearing." They contend the legislation contains two features which are nowhere in the bill — a "child-advocacy clause" which would have government-appointed specialists assuming the parent's authority over the child, and a "charter of children's rights" which would permit children to sue their parents, to file complaints against teachers and parents, or to refuse to be taught anything about God.

There is no truth to this campaign. NEA supports the measure, which authorizes such programs as day care centers and family day care homes for children of working parents, prenatal and other maternal and child health services, food and nutrition services, and special programs for handicapped children.

All programs under the law would be provided on a voluntary basis only to children whose parents or legal guardians request such services. Parents would have more authority and control over the programs funded under this bill than they now do over most public school or day care programs. And the federal government would not dictate the nature of the program in any given locality.

In testimony before Congress last year, NEA supported the bill, urging the enactment of language that would help states and local communities provide day care services, including early childhood development programs, health services, public community centers for the seriously handicapped, and family counseling. NEA called for the maximum involvement of educators and parents at the operational and administrative levels, asked that public schools systems be permitted to act as prime sponsors of day care programs, and urged that funds be provided for training and retraining of personnel for the federally assisted programs.

A Page Of Opinion

Winter, Where Is Thy Sting?

As the days of February move along, the minds and hearts of men turn to spring. Surely, surely, the miserable rain, ice, snow and blistering cold winds cannot long endure.

February, when it comes to weather, is a complete failure. The thrill of battling the elements is long gone. Fighting slick sidewalks and frozen garage doors fails to enthrall. The utility bills, as large as the mortgage, come in a never-ending stream.

Granted, spring does show a few hints now and then, but not often enough and not long enough. Really, it is not a hint of spring, but merely winter recoiling to deliver another low blow.

Perhaps the most fortunate thing about February is that it is the shortest month of the year, with only 29 days even in leap year. After a continuing battle of several weeks, one can see the end of the tunnel. And what bursts upon the scene?

Good grief, here comes March!

Soft Words Will Win

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — In this, the age of liberation, the voices of too many women have become strident.

This is unfortunate because stridency in women has, quite suddenly, lost impact and influence.

The phenomenal recording success of Olivia Newton-John, a singer whose voice is sweet, gentle and yummy-girlish, is symptomatic of the public's yearning for change.

The nation's eardrums are polluted and, in an election year, are doomed to become even more so. As a consequence, say some speech experts, the surest way to attract attention and make your ideas heard today is to talk quietly. Slowly. And calmly.

In other words, verbally speaking, carry a soft stick, and wave it listlessly.

"I don't care how lovely you are, you won't be viewed as lovely if your voice is out of character," speech authorities say. "To capture people's attention — particularly the attention of male people — a woman should keep her voice down, in tone, pace and nasality."

How to do it? Here are some tests and exercises...

First, hear yourself as others hear you. No need to tape-record your voice and listen to an excruciating playback. Simply go off in a corner and cup your hands behind your ears. Now repeat distinctly, so that the sound will bounce off the walls into your ear flaps: "The seething sea ceaseth and it sufficeth me." (This may also be an effective test of your dentures.)

If your voice sounds like a nailfile streaking across a frying pan, do not panic. There are procedures for correcting it.

Instruction No. 1 is to slow down. Speech therapists have long agreed that the major vocal fault among women is that they speak too rapidly. In a group, they tend to pick up one another's tempo. And the voices inevitably grow higher in pitch as the speed and competition increase.

So cool the speed. "In a gathering, you can double-talk if you want to — but if you do it slowly enough, people will look at you with interest," therapists have claimed.

An easy way to check your speed rate is to get out a stopwatch and a book. Read aloud and time yourself. A "moderate" rate of speech is considered to be approximately 126 words a minute. But if you can talk even slower, without sounding boring, so much the better.

After you've trained yourself to speak slowly, test your vibrations. Hold your nose and repeat "Howard Menninger." You should feel a vibration in your nose only during the "Menninger" — because the other three sounds which properly shudder are schnooz are "m," "n" and "ng." If your nose vibrates on any other tones, your speech is too nasal. Work on getting your voice down out of your respiratory track.

Once you have de-vibrated the wrong syllables, investigate the level of your voice. Here is an old advice for doing so: Hold a lighted candle four inches from your mouth and repeat distinctly, "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers." If the candle blows out, you're talking too loud. If you run out of breath before "peppers" you're not regulating your diaphragm. If you flub the line altogether, go to the foot of the class.

As any speech master will tell you, an unregulated diaphragm results from flabby muscle tone. To check your lazy muscles, try the old technique of putting one hand on your diaphragm and shouting "Boom!" at the nearest wall. Did it bounce (the diaphragm, not the wall)?

If it did not bounce, that's bad. Here is an exercise the speech therapists suggest for correcting the condition. Lie flat on the floor on your back, with a heavy book or two on your diaphragm. Now yell, "Home, hy, he, ho, hoo!"

This either will strengthen your diaphragm — or it will bring a man running to your aid.

In the event he is not wearing a white coat and carrying a straight jacket, you will already have accomplished your mission.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was like walking off a cliff," said the builder, describing how the depression in housing hit his company in 1974. "The sales were there one day, gone the next."

The speaker was Frank Mackle Jr., president of the Deltona Corp., which has erected and sold 30,000 housing units in communities it developed throughout Florida.

His experience was matched around the country by other builders, large and small, many of whom went bankrupt. Those who survived did so by analyzing their problems and adjusting to the new realities.

As a result, a promising new market may be developing for home buyers, despite high interest rates and a generally less than bullish outlook for the industry. The new market should be better attuned to demand.

"This recession has been extremely good for our future well being," said Mackle, speaking of the nation as well as his company, which tumbled into a deficit after many years of steadily rising sales and profits.

Although its income still hasn't fully recovered, Deltona last year sold 29 per cent more homes than in the previous year, a total of 678, an increase resulting almost entirely from the introduction of lower priced units.

Deltona's experience and its reaction to it was matched in smaller ways by other builders around the country, who now realize that housing prices must be returned to the pocketbook reality.

It might seem preposterous that builders would forget this principle of a free market, but they did. So did some car makers. While it is true that builders were presented with rising costs for land, labor and materials, they failed to make economies where economies could be made.

"We had been basic builders," said Mackle, "and then we went to building houses for $35,000 and up. We made a hell of a mistake." Buyers would have to have incomes of $20,000, cut most of the potential buyers were retirees.

"We always used to give the buyer what he wanted," said Mackle. "Dad (Frank Mackle Sr., who began operation in Nashville 65 years ago) said, Don't build monuments to yourself, build what the public wants and can pay for."

When sales stopped in December 1974, Mackle executives searched for an explanation. In 1962, they recalled, Deltona sold a minimum house for $6,900. This was the basis for much of the company's enormous success in the 1960s.

Back to the drawing board they went, and soon came up with a basic, 650-foot, insulated, easily expandable house costing $17,800 for one bedroom and bath, air conditioning and heating, 7,500-foot lot included.

The story of how prices could be cut provides an example of what other builders around the country are attempting to do in order to restore the market, from which most Americans are excluded because of price.

Taft Announces Re-Election Bid

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, today began his campaign for re-election by pledging to continue his fight against big spending and big government.

"I will continue to support programs which will help those who need help. But I will continue to fight those programs which do little more than fatten those who govern," Taft said during a speech at Cincinnati's Lunken Airport.

The early-morning press conference was the first of six stops around the state for the 58-year-old Cincinnati attorney, who began his political career in 1955.

Taft also scheduled stops in Columbus, Cleveland, Youngstown, Toledo and Dayton.

Man Finally Gets Medal From War

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A medal earned while flying combat missions with the 14th Air Force over China more than 30 years ago has finally been picked up by a Mansfield man.

Since his 1945 discharge Robert E. Luman had been trying to track down the headquarters of the 14th Air Force Association, composed of China-Burma-India Theater veterans of World War II.

Luman finally got in contact with the organization through a newspaper article sent him by his sister in Zanesville. The story not only provided the whereabouts of the organization but revealed the existence of a medal he did not know he had qualified for.

The award—the China War Memorial Medal—has become better known as the "lost decoration" of World War II. It was authorized by the Chinese government near the end of the war, but the rush to return home apparently jumbled the records of those who were to receive it.

Some veterans had notations in their service records listing the award, but none had ever seen it.

Last year, after persistent research by the veterans organization, the medals were distributed to many Americans. Luman learned of his eligibility through the newspaper article.

Now a sales engineer for Ohio Brass Co., the Zanesville native adds the Chinese medal to the flying awards he earned, including the List of Crosses.

He plans to attend annual conventions of the association, although he said he'll skip this year's get-together which is in Taiwan.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1976. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1763, France ceded Canada to England as the Treaty of Paris was signed, ending the French and Indian war.

On this date:

In 1828, the South American patriot, Simon Bolivar, became ruler of Colombia.

In 1840, England's Queen Victoria married Prince Albert.

In 1846, members of the Mormon faith began an exodus to the West from Nauvoo, Illinois.

In 1939, the Japanese occupied Hainan Island off the south coast of China.

In 1962, the Soviet Union exchanged the captured American U-2 pilot Gary Francis Powers for a Soviet spy held by the United States, Rudolf Abel.

In 1964, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the most far-reaching civil rights bill ever considered by the Congress.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson proposed a multibillion dollar Food for Freedom program to help needy nations.

Five years ago: The Cambodian head of state, Lon Nol, suffered a stroke, and his right side was reported paralyzed.

One year ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in Israel to begin another round of Mideast peace talks.

Today's birthdays: Opera singer Leontyne Price is 49. Actress Judith Anderson is 78.

Thought for today: To speak kindly does not hurt the tongue — a French proverb.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, at Cambridge, Mass. General George Washington, whose troops were short of arms, asked the New York Safety Committee to send him any guns confiscated from Tories.

"Thought I'd tell you. There's a 65 per cent chance of my being ill tomorrow."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I got adhesions after a gall bladder operation. Can you explain why this happens? Do adhesions get worse?

Mrs. B. A., S.C.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Adhesions are small bands of firm, fibrous tissue. These bands can occur after surgery anywhere within the abdomen.

Infection or inflammation of the thin lining that surrounds the abdominal cavity is sometimes followed by adhesions.

Adhesions do not always follow abdominal surgery. Some people seem to be more prone to adhesions than others. The delicacy with which surgery is performed today is the major reason why adhesions occur so much less frequently than they formerly did.

The only time that adhesions present a problem is when they surround a portion of the intestinal tract and interfere with its normal function.

Basically, however, adhesions that produce no symptoms are rarely dangerous.

Do doctors still believe in the theory of "focus of infection"?

Mr. T. B. V., Mich.

Dear Mr. V.:

The teeth, the gums, the sinuses, the tonsils, the appendix and the gall bladder may harbor bacteria.

Sometimes these germs may enter the bloodstream, travel to a distant part of the body, and implant themselves in an organ.

Those doctors who subscribe to the theory of "focus of infection" believe that some forms of arthritis, bladder infections and kidney disease may be explained in this way.

Whether or not one "believes" in this theory is not nearly as important as what one should do about it. For it is undeniable that infection anywhere in the body should be treated and eliminated.

Is massage a good way to lose weight?

Miss L. K., Calif.

Dear Miss K.:

It is a misconception to believe that excess weight and fat beneath the skin can be eliminated by rubbing and massage.

It is true that massage can give one an invigorating feeling and better muscle tone. But do not delude yourself into believing that this is a reducing technique. Despite the many new ideas that appeal to those anxious to lose weight, a single law is undeniable:

The loss of weight depends entirely on the reduction of the caloric intake.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

Recent allegations regarding the 1975 Child and Family Services Act are based on misleading information. Charges quoted denying parental control and guidance of children do not appear anywhere in this bill. The alarming quotations on the unsigned fact sheet come from a British document.

Briefly, Senator Mondale's Child and Family Services Act offers to families on a totally voluntary basis access to health, education and child care services which they want for their children but can't afford. It offers funds for prenatal health care, early medical screening and treatment to detect and remedy handicapping conditions, and day care services for working mothers. The bill specifically limits eligibility for these services to "children whose parents or guardians request such services."

A copy of the bill can be examined at the County Extension office. Supporters of this bill include, among others, the United Methodist Church, U.S. Catholic Conference, the Baptist and Lutheran Churches, and the National Education Association. In spite of these endorsements, honest people may disagree about the bill's merits and cost. Arguments should be based on research facts, not hearsay!

Dear Editor,

During the past few months, there has been a wide distribution of anonymous pamphlets in our county concerning HR 2966.

The February, 1976 issue of the National Education Association's "Reporter" carried the following article concerning this bill and pamphlet.

I'm not advocating the passage or defect of this bill but I am asking the Herald to reprint this article for the readers' consideration.

Following is the article as it appeared in the "Reporter":

A vicious propaganda campaign against the pending Child and Family Services Act (HR 2966, S 626) is being waged across the country. Unattributed flyers full of distortions and untruths are being circulated in churches, shopping centers, and news media. The attack on the bill repeats much of the rhetoric used at the time President Nixon vetoed the similar Child Development Act of 1971.

The flyers condemn the bill as a design for imposing "the Soviet-style system of communal child-rearing." They contend the legislation contains two features which are nowhere in the bill — a "child-advocacy clause" which would have government-appointed specialists assuming the parent's authority over the child, and a "charter of children's rights" which would permit children to sue their parents, to file complaints against teachers and parents, or to refuse to be taught anything about God.

Thieves Open Police Chief Raps Safe, But Take Nothing

Pickaway County Sheriff's Detective Don Thompson and agents from London's Bureau of Criminal Investigation are gathering evidence, including fingerprints, into a safe cracking at the Woodlyn Grain Co., Route 2, Williamsport.

Nothing appeared to be taken in the burglary attempt, they said, although there were $82 cash in the safe and some checks payable to the grain company.

Bookkeeper Pauline Jones discovered the break in, which occurred sometime between 4:30 p.m. Sunday and 8:05 a.m. Monday.

Thieves entered the first section of the building, located on the Chillicothe Pike in Woodlyn, possibly through an unlocked door. They tore the hook lock off a second door and broke a glass to gain entry through the third, where the safe is located.

Only moderate damage was reported to the safe, and nothing else in the offices appeared to be disturbed.

Thieves took 30 long-playing record albums and two cassette tapes from an apartment rented to Eva Legg, 5066 Cook Rd., Ashville.

The theft occurred last weekend, Sheriff's Deputies said.

No signs of forced entry could be found. Loss is estimated at $124.

Bomb Squad Sets Fire To Dynamite

Members of the 71st Ordinance Detachment, EOD Squad, from Rickenbacker Air Force Base set fire to 22 sticks of dynamite found by a city resident Monday.

Circleville Police Chief Robert Temple said the dynamite was deteriorated and decapped.

It was burnt on property owned by Donald Goodchild as a safety measure, he said.

Martin Sharrett, 163 Montclair Ave., told Police Sgt. Wes Barton that his son had found the dynamite. Sharrett placed the dynamite in a wooden crate, in his front yard.

Thieves broke into the locked locker of Shelia Costell, 566 Garden Parkway, at the Circleville Junior High School Monday to take $55 worth of clothing. Stolen items included a Tiger jacket

Police Chief Raps Gun Control Law

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland City Council leaders say their handgun registration ordinance will be an effective tool to reduce the city's homicide toll, but Police Chief Lloyd Garey had a different reaction to the new law Monday night.

"It's bad news," said Garey. Garey said for one thing the details of registering and photographing gunowners and issuing the $5 ID cards will take many policemen from regular assignments.

"It won't be as simple as the legislation looks, and enforcement will be impossible," he said. The chief is an appointee of Mayor Ralph Perk, who has been a staunch foe of gun registration.

The Republican mayor, faced with the near certainty that a veto would be overridden, said the ordinance was "purely cosmetic," but signed it into law immediately after the Democrat-controlled council passed it by a 24-8 vote.

Council President George Forbes said the measure included an amendment delaying the deadline for registering guns 60 days so police could set up registration and enforcement machinery.

"It could produce more homicides than we have now, if people interpret the legislation as a permit to carry a weapon, and many will think that," said the chief.

He predicted there will be no beneficial effect on law enforcement and called the law a needless waste of money.

The Gun Control Federation, which drafted the ordinance, estimated there are 60,000 to 100,000 handguns in Cleveland.

However, Police Lt. Michael J. Roth, who is in charge of destruction of confiscated guns, estimated the number of handguns in the city is closer to 500,000, with an estimated 100,000 owners affected by the registration law.

In addition to getting ID cards, gunowners will have to pay $1 for each gun registered. Violators face a maximum $1,000 fine under the ordinance.

Reformatory Uses Metal Detector

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A metal detector is now being used on inmates' visitors at the Ohio State Reformatory in an attempt by officials to end the flow of contraband.

Visitors must empty their pockets, purses and handbags before walking through the device which is similar to those used at major airports. Any metallic object will trigger an alarm.

Reformatory Supt. Frank Gray said the metal detector, which was provided by the federal government, has reduced the number of weapons smuggled to inmates. He cited the discovery on the first day that the detector was used of six .38-caliber bullets being carried by a visitor.

Gray said the tightened security also is making a dent in the amount of drugs smuggled to the inmates.

"This search is now a condition of visiting a person in this institution," Gray said. "If you don't dump your purse and pockets, you don't get in. We can't tell who the people are who are bringing these things in unless we check."

Gray said the more strict security measures include more thorough searches of food items and packages brought in for inmates and better searches of the inmates themselves after a visit.

Security at the reformatory was "lax" prior to his becoming superintendent last September, Gray said. He said rumors about the ease with which drugs and weapons were brought into the prison were common.

"Drugs get in here regularly," he said. "They come through the mail, and in many ways there is very little we can do about it. It's not a crisis, but it is a nuisance," he concluded.

Property Tax Probe Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new House member whose own property taxes increased 35 per cent this year has asked the state auditor to investigate property taxation in his county.

Rep. Terry Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati, said he was prompted by reports that taxpayers in 23 of Ohio's 88 counties may have paid a total of $20 million more last year than they should have.

The reports came from the Ohio Education Association which said the overcharges apparently resulted from the failure of county auditors to roll back millage to compensate for annual reappraisal updates.

John Hall, chief lobbyist for the OEA, called the $20 million a reliable figure overall, but said questions remain as to how the overcharge could be attributed to particular counties.

Tranter's home county, Hamilton, was not among the 23 for which the OEA released figures, but it was reappraised last year, and Auditor Joseph Decourcy reported a large number of complaints and protests from homeowners.

A spokesman for State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson said Tranter's request for an investigation probably will be honored with a spot check in Hamilton County by the division that oversees fiscal affairs of counties, municipalities, and schools.

In his request, the freshman attorney-lawmaker said in part that when the right of people "to control the amount of taxes they pay is removed, our country will be in the same position it was before the American Revolution, when a king could tax at will."

Several county auditors took sharp exception to the figures put out by the OEA and said they complied with the law that requires them to lower millage (the tax rate) to compensate for year-to-year increases in property values.

Bill Curbs Pupil Data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information about school pupils could not be released without parents' consent under a bill approved 26-1 Monday night by the Senate.

Among its provisions, a special section prohibits giving out such information that could provide mailing lists for any person or group "for use in a profit-making plan or activity."

Sen. M. Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, opposed it, he said, because the bill could keep information about disciplinary actions away from potential employers.

In other action as the Senate held a brief floor session opening this week's legislative activities, senators sent the House 25-0 a proposed constitutional amendment clarifying certification procedures for statewide election results.

If approved by the House, the amendment would go on the November ballot, according to its chief sponsor, Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Gallion.

The House returned from weekend recess today.

However, at least one local official, Sandusky County Deputy Auditor Esther Seibert, said the auditor's office in that county is careful to implement the rollback "so as not to increase the taxes any more than necessary to comply with the budgets."

Organization Meet Set For Young GOPers

Young Republicans and all other young people in Pickaway County interested in organizing a Young Republican Club should meet in the Common Pleas Courtroom of the Pickaway County Court House tonight at 7 p.m.

Rotary Farmers Day Slated Feb. 26

The Circleville Rotary Club will hold its annual Farmers Day meal at Community United Methodist Church 11:45 p.m. Feb. 26.

Rotarians may purchase tickets from Bob Temple, Curt Bower, Harold Sherman, Russ Palm or Harold Defenbaugh.

Tranter said the reports of overcharge raised "an alarming question ... a question which has been on the minds of all owners of real estate in Hamilton County since the recent reappraisal of our homes."

However, Police Lt. Michael J. Roth, who is in charge of destruction of confiscated guns, estimated the number of handguns in the city is closer to 500,000, with an estimated 100,000 owners affected by the registration law.

In addition to getting ID cards, gunowners will have to pay $1 for each gun registered. Violators face a maximum $1,000 fine under the ordinance.

Reformatory Uses Metal Detector

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A metal detector is now being used on inmates' visitors at the Ohio State Reformatory in an attempt by officials to end the flow of contraband.

Visitors must empty their pockets, purses and handbags before walking through the device which is similar to those used at major airports. Any metallic object will trigger an alarm.

Reformatory Supt. Frank Gray said the metal detector, which was provided by the federal government, has reduced the number of weapons smuggled to inmates. He cited the discovery on the first day that the detector was used of six .38-caliber bullets being carried by a visitor.

Gray said the tightened security also is making a dent in the amount of drugs smuggled to the inmates.

"This search is now a condition of visiting a person in this institution," Gray said. "If you don't dump your purse and pockets, you don't get in. We can't tell who the people are who are bringing these things in unless we check."

Gray said the more strict security measures include more thorough searches of food items and packages brought in for inmates and better searches of the inmates themselves after a visit.

Security at the reformatory was "lax" prior to his becoming superintendent last September, Gray said. He said rumors about the ease with which drugs and weapons were brought into the prison were common.

"Drugs get in here regularly," he said. "They come through the mail, and in many ways there is very little we can do about it. It's not a crisis, but it is a nuisance," he concluded.

Property Tax Probe Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new House member whose own property taxes increased 35 per cent this year has asked the state auditor to investigate property taxation in his county.

Rep. Terry Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati, said he was prompted by reports that taxpayers in 23 of Ohio's 88 counties may have paid a total of $20 million more last year than they should have.

The reports came from the Ohio Education Association which said the overcharges apparently resulted from the failure of county auditors to roll back millage to compensate for annual reappraisal updates.

John Hall, chief lobbyist for the OEA, called the $20 million a reliable figure overall, but said questions remain as to how the overcharge could be attributed to particular counties.

Tranter's home county, Hamilton, was not among the 23 for which the OEA released figures, but it was reappraised last year, and Auditor Joseph Decourcy reported a large number of complaints and protests from homeowners.

A spokesman for State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson said Tranter's request for an investigation probably will be honored with a spot check in Hamilton County by the division that oversees fiscal affairs of counties, municipalities, and schools.

In his request, the freshman attorney-lawmaker said in part that when the right of people "to control the amount of taxes they pay is removed, our country will be in the same position it was before the American Revolution, when a king could tax at will."

Several county auditors took sharp exception to the figures put out by the OEA and said they complied with the law that requires them to lower millage (the tax rate) to compensate for year-to-year increases in property values.

Bill Curbs Pupil Data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information about school pupils could not be released without parents' consent under a bill approved 26-1 Monday night by the Senate.

Among its provisions, a special section prohibits giving out such information that could provide mailing lists for any person or group "for use in a profit-making plan or activity."

Sen. M. Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, opposed it, he said, because the bill could keep information about disciplinary actions away from potential employers.

In other action as the Senate held a brief floor session opening this week's legislative activities, senators sent the House 25-0 a proposed constitutional amendment clarifying certification procedures for statewide election results.

If approved by the House, the amendment would go on the November ballot, according to its chief sponsor, Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion.

The House returned from weekend recess today.

However, at least one local official, Sandusky County Deputy Auditor Esther Seibert, said the auditor's office in that county is careful to implement the rollback "so as not to increase the taxes any more than necessary to comply with the budgets."

Organization Meet Set For Young GOPers

Young Republicans and all other young people in Pickaway County interested in organizing a Young Republican Club should meet in the Common Pleas Courtroom of the Pickaway County Court House tonight at 7 p.m.

Rotary Farmers Day Slated Feb. 26

The Circleville Rotary Club will hold its annual Farmers Day meal at Community United Methodist Church 11:45 p.m. Feb. 26.

Rotarians may purchase tickets from Bob Temple, Curt Bower, Harold Sherman, Russ Palm or Harold Defenbaugh.

Tranter said the reports of overcharge raised "an alarming question ... a question which has been on the minds of all owners of real estate in Hamilton County since the recent reappraisal of our homes."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Seeks Love Secrets

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and I hear Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking: Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints from my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why.

Maybe your readers can help. Thank you.

ED IN EAST ILLINOIS

DEAR ED: I can offer two suggestions: Try The Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to that ding-a-ling who is seriously considering suing his parents for $100,000 for having him circumcised as an infant—a "barbaric surgery, an assault on his person, which permanently maimed and disfigured him." In my opinion, he was circumcised at the wrong end.

YIDDISH MAMA: SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old nurse who has been widowed for 15 years.

In the line of duty, I took care of a very attractive well-to-do widower, age 59. When he left the hospital, he asked if he could see me again so we could get better acquainted. I agreed.

It took him nearly six months to call me, after which we started dating. I was on cloud eight! We've been going out for over a year now, and he proposed marriage.

My problem is that he admits that he is still seeing several other women and says that until he has a definite answer from me he will continue to date others.

Abby, this has turned me off on him and made me skeptical of his so-called marriage proposal. I am losing respect for him. If a man thinks enough of a woman to want to marry her, why would he want to date other women?

How can I say yes tonight when I know he had another woman in his arms last night?

FRUSTRATED AT 50

DEAR FRUSTRATED: My guess is that he is trying to maneuver you into an early decision. If you want to marry him, say yes. And until you don't, he's a free agent.

Boil artichokes, covered, in a saucepot into which they fit snugly in a generous amount of water until tender — 30 to 40 minutes. Drain well upsidedown. Gently heat the butter and vermouth until butter melts; serve in small containers as a dip with the hot artichokes. Makes 4 servings.

Yeast doughs that refrigerate well are usually higher in yeast and sugar than standard doughs that are baked right after preparing and rising.

Shawnee Vineyards Is Place Where Old Friends Meet

THE SALAD bar is the latest innovation at Shawnee Vineyards where the comfort and desire of the diners are emphasized. Beverly Russell is always ready to assist in preparing the salad.

WINEMAKER Tom Pritchard keeps a close watch on the wines in Shawnee Vineyards' cellar to assure customers they will enjoy a quality product.

Only a little over a year old, Shawnee Vineyards is quickly gaining a reputation as a fine restaurant where old friends meet to dine.

The cuisine, prepared by chef Bruce Barnes, is the finest, and the atmosphere at the Vineyards is such that the diner is encouraged to return time and again.

Visitors are attracted daily from all corners of the state to the Vineyard to enjoy the wines and other beverages and the high quality food.

Shawnee Vineyards opened Dec. 18, 1974 and is located five miles east of Circleville on State Route 56. It was originally intended to serve as a wine-tasting room for the varieties of wine made there.

But soon the customers were asking for sandwiches and then for full-course meals.

Barnes, who has eight years experience as a chef, in the United States Air Force and at Airport Inn, Syracuse, N.Y., was added to the winery staff to fill this need. He is a native of Circleville and he and his wife, Linda, and two children, reside here.

He provides the diners with a well-rounded menu of excellent food including Italian dishes and seafood, but is exceptionally proud of his steaks which are charbroiled to suit the taste of the diner.

A recent innovation is the addition of the salad bar where diners may create their own salad from the varieties of fresh, crisp vegetables and top it off with the house dressing, a special tangy blend that is made with wine, or with their favorite dressing.

There is also a special house dessert prepared with the discriminating gourmet in mind.

The Vineyards opens at 11 a.m. daily, except Sunday and the menu includes a variety of hot and cold sandwiches. There is a special "happy hour" from 3 to 6 p.m. each day, and the accommodations include a television set at the bar so customers may enjoy their favorite show or sporting event.

Ray and Ann Curtis have become an important part of the operation at the winery. They began by helping proprietors Jack and Judy Goode on the weekends because they are good friends.

Ray is now the bartender on weekends. He is also the superintendent of Logan Elm Village.

Ann became so interested in the business that she attended and graduated from the Institute of Waitress Training. She is now the sales hostess on weekends and assists in planning all special parties.

Beverly Russell has been in food services for 12 years and is the waitress every night and on weekends.

Tom Pritchard is the winemaker and his vintages include Catawba, Niagara, American Sautern, Pink Catawba, Shawnee Rose, American Burgundy, Concord and Shawnee Rose.

The decor of the restaurant is reminiscent of European villas with the dining room resembling a swiss chalet. At one end is the gigantic fireplace and at the other the spacious windows which allow diners panoramic view of the vineyards and also of an Indian mound which helped the Goodees decide on the name.

There have been a number of interior changes made in the dining room. Judy Goode has been responsible designing the beautiful dining and bar area. Dr. J. E. Goeller is a partner in the vineyards.

Besides the regular service, the winery is available on certain nights to groups for winetasting or dining parties. Banquets, dinners, luncheons and cocktail parties can also be arranged at any time.

Visitors may also purchase bottles of wine for gifts and Good and his staff can personalize the labels. Bottles are packaged in attractive gift boxes that have won a national award for design from the National Association of Packagers.

PLANNING special parties and dinners is one of the services offered by Jack Goode and hostess Ann Curtis at Shawnee Vineyards.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

If the 94th Congress plans to add to the growing federal deficit, it will have to go on public record to do it. That is the dictate of the new Budget procedure, which will get its first real test early in this session.

Enactment of the Budget and Impoundment Control Act went almost unnoticed in the summer of 1974. It was an attempt by Congress to regain some control over the spending process.

House and Senate Budget committees were established to set spending and revenue goals, and a Congressional Budget Office was set up to provide Congress with technical assistance in much the same manner as the Office of Management and Budget advises the President.

This is not the first congressional attempt at Budget reform. In 1946, the Legislative Reorganization Act was approved, but after a few short years of disagreement over a spending ceiling and failure to abide by it, the effort of reform was abandoned.

The new Budget reform law will likewise fail, if congressional big spenders refuse to live with spending ceilings and if the battle over priorities for spending makes it impossible for Congress to meet deadlines required by the act.

Under the new procedures, Congress will be forced to look at the Budget as a whole and will be required to consider the effect of their actions on inflation, unemployment, and economic growth.

In the past, Congress has adopted its appropriations bills for the various sectors of the government independently of one another, and not added them up. Now it will have to add them up . . . and meet deadlines in doing so.

The starting date of the federal fiscal year has been changed from July 1 to October 1, beginning this year, to give Congress more time to pass all authorizing and appropriations bills before the start of each fiscal year.

By May 15, all legislation authorizing spending must be out of committees, and a first budget resolution setting a spending ceiling must be passed. Congress will then have all summer to pass the actual spending or appropriations bills. These must be completed by seven days after Labor Day.

Congress then adds up all the actual spending it has approved, compares that with the targets it set in May and must reconcile the two. Everything must be completed by Sept. 25.

That is the way it is supposed to work. Its trial run did not prove totally successful, however. The record shows that some old spending habits have not been discarded.

The final Budget resolution for FY 1976, which set a spending limit of $375 billion, was almost $8 billion more than the first resolution and more than $25 billion over the President's original Budget request. Thus, Congress endorsed a $74 billion deficit, largest in our history. So, there is reason to wonder if Congress will accept the discipline of Budget controls and stop the flow of money to special interest groups.

Last year's trial run also found Congress unable to meet its own deadlines. The final Budget resolution was finally adopted on Dec. 11, almost three months past the target date. Some appropriations bills are still pending, and the fiscal year is more than half over.

President Ford's Budget request for Fiscal Year 1977 shows only a 5.5 per cent increase over the Fiscal 1976 Budget. I welcome his call for a "new realism," which recognizes that there are limits to how much the government can spend and collect without crippling our national system of individual enterprise.

The President is advocating a Budget policy that is designed to help the private economy regain its strength. However, he faces some stiff opposition from the big spenders in Congress.

Even the limits imposed by the new Budget procedures may not reduce their appetites for extravagant spending. If such turns out to be the case, at least the American people will know what is going on when these spenders are forced to vote explicitly for any deficit or surplus they help create.

TV Board Discusses Bond Issue

The Teays Valley Board of Education met in special session Monday night to discuss the possibility of placing a bond issue on the ballot in June. The board reviewed the factors involved and discussed at length the things most pertinent to a bond issue.

Most of the meeting was spent reviewing the architect's cost figures and the financial status of the bonding capacity for the requirements of an issue should the board decide to go ahead with it.

In other action during the evening, the board approved an adult sewing class to be held at the high school building on Feb. 17 and 24 and March 2 for a period of two hours each session. The teacher, Mrs. Elaine Winter, will be remunerated for the instruction through the $3 fee to be charged per enrollee.

The board also passed a resolution to authorize the payment of fees for the required bus driver training for those substitutes and regular drivers who serve in the Teays Valley School District.

The meet was adjourned to continue at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at the high school building. At that time, the board will further discuss the bond issue and make a decision on it.

Blame Children For Fatal Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Children playing with matches were blamed for the deaths of two brothers who died in a house fire Monday on the city's northeast side.

The victims were identified by the fire department as 1-year-old Wallace Love and 4-year-old Winston Love.

Two other children, 7-year-old twins, escaped the blaze in the two-story wood frame house.

The fire started in the attic, a fire department spokesman said.

3 Men Sentenced For Lima Escape

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Allen County Common Pleas Court Judge John Harnishfeger has sentenced three men to seven to 35 years in prison for their escape from Lima State Hospital.

The three, who later were captured, are Leonard Singleton, 25, of Dayton; Irving Green, 28, of Cleveland and Thomas Sturgeon, 23, of Cincinnati.

Arraignment is pending for two other escapees, William Murphy, 29, of Hamilton, and Jerome Stanley, 22, of Detroit. Stanley is being held in Florida.

Attorneys told the court the inmates escaped from the institution because of improper treatment and warned that future escapes can be expected unless treatment improves.

Crashes With Guardrails Injure Three

Three people were injured in accidents involving guardrails, according to reports at the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Pamela L. Robinson, 24, Canal Winchester, and a passenger in her car, James Siegfried, 27, Columbus, were referred to doctors for minor injuries they suffered in a 9:50 p.m. Monday accident on the Winchester Rd. at Duvall Rd.

Ms. Robinson suffered lacerations to both knees, while Siegfried had a bump on his forehead.

According to the report of Deputy J. Phillip Brown, Ms. Robinson was southbound on the Winchester Rd. and in the process of making a right turn onto the Duvall Rd. when her car slid on loose gravel and struck a guardrail.

Christina Baldwin, 37, Route 1, Stoutsville, was admitted to Berger Hospital for observation after suffering a head injury, possibly a concussion, in a single car accident 5:10 a.m. Tuesday on Route 104, south of the West-Ford Rd. intersection.

She was taken to the hospital by the Scioto Squad.

Ms. Baldwin told Deputy Nick Franklin that she was northbound on Route 104 and lost control of her car while attempting to drive through a sharp curve in the road.

The car slid off the east side of the paved surface, crashed into a guardrail, and came to rest on top of the guardrail.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

If the 94th Congress plans to add to the growing federal deficit, it will have to go on public record to do it. That is the dictate of the new Budget procedure, which will get its first real test early in this session.

Enactment of the Budget and Impoundment Control Act went almost unnoticed in the summer of 1974. It was an attempt by Congress to regain some control over the spending process.

House and Senate Budget committees were established to set spending and revenue goals, and a Congressional Budget Office was set up to provide Congress with technical assistance in much the same manner as the Office of Management and Budget advises the President.

This is not the first congressional attempt at Budget reform. In 1946, the Legislative Reorganization Act was approved, but after a few short years of disagreement over a spending ceiling and failure to abide by it, the effort of reform was abandoned.

The new Budget reform law will likewise fail, if congressional big spenders refuse to live with spending ceilings and if the battle over priorities for spending makes it impossible for Congress to meet deadlines required by the act.

Under the new procedures, Congress will be forced to look at the Budget as a whole and will be required to consider the effect of their actions on inflation, unemployment, and economic growth.

In the past, Congress has adopted its appropriations bills for the various sectors of the government independently of one another, and not added them up. Now it will have to add them up ... and meet deadlines in doing so.

The starting date of the federal fiscal year has been changed from July 1 to October 1, beginning this year, to give Congress more time to pass all authorizing and appropriations bills before the start of each fiscal year.

By May 15, all legislation authorizing spending must be out of committees, and a first budget resolution setting a spending ceiling must be passed. Congress will then have all summer to pass the actual spending or appropriations bills. These must be completed by seven days after Labor Day.

Congress then adds up all the actual spending it has approved, compares that with the targets it set in May and must reconcile the two. Everything must be completed by Sept. 25.

That is the way it is supposed to work. Its trial run did not prove totally successful, however. The record shows that some old spending habits have not been discarded.

The final Budget resolution for FY 1976, which set a spending limit of $375 billion, was almost $8 billion more than the first resolution and more than $25 billion over the President's original Budget request. Thus, Congress endorsed a $74 billion deficit, largest in our history. So, there is reason to wonder if Congress will accept the discipline of Budget controls and stop the flow of money to special interest groups.

Last year's trial run also found Congress unable to meet its own deadlines. The final Budget resolution was finally adopted on Dec. 11, almost three months past the target date. Some appropriations bills are still pending, and the fiscal year is more than half over.

President Ford's Budget request for Fiscal Year 1977 shows only a 5.5 per cent increase over the Fiscal 1976 Budget. I welcome his call for a "new realism," which recognizes that there are limits to how much the government can spend and collect without crippling our national system of individual enterprise.

The President is advocating a Budget policy that is designed to help the private economy regain its strength. However, he faces some stiff opposition from the big spenders in Congress.

Even the limits imposed by the new Budget procedures may not reduce their appetites for extravagant spending. If such turns out to be the case, at least the American people will know what is going on when these spenders are forced to vote explicitly for any deficit or surplus they help create.

TV Board Discusses Bond Issue

The Teays Valley Board of Education met in special session Monday night to discuss the possibility of placing a bond issue on the ballot in June. The board reviewed the factors involved and discussed at length the things most pertinent to a bond issue. Most of the meeting was spent reviewing the architect's cost figures and the financial status of the bonding capacity for the requirements of an issue should the board decide to go ahead with it.

In other action during the evening, the board approved an adult sewing class to be held at the high school building on Feb. 17 and 24 and March 2 for a period of two hours each session. The teacher, Mrs. Elaine Winter, will be remunerated for the instruction through the $3 fee to be charged per enrollee.

The board also passed a resolution to authorize the payment of fees for the required bus driver training for those substitutes and regular drivers who serve in the Teays Valley School District.

The meet was adjourned to continue at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at the high school building. At that time, the board will further discuss the bond issue and make a decision on it.

Blame Children For Fatal Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Children playing with matches were blamed for the deaths of two brothers who died in a house fire Monday on the city's northeast side.

The victims were identified by the fire department as 1-year-old Wallace Love and 4-year-old Winston Love.

Two other children, 7-year-old twins, escaped the blaze in the two-story wood frame house.

The fire started in the attic, a fire department spokesman said.

Fund Shortage Seen At Toledo

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Toledo should seek to recover $6,931.60 from a former accounts clerk in the city's House of Correction, the state auditor's office said Monday.

The finding was against Vivian Long. The auditor said an audit of the house's books for 1973 and 1974 showed collections for inmates' recreation funds and fines and costs funds were unaccounted for.

3 Men Sentenced For Lima Escape

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Allen County Common Pleas Court Judge John Harnishfeger has sentenced three men to seven to 35 years in prison for their escape from Lima State Hospital.

The three, who later were captured, are Leonard Singleton, 25, of Dayton; Irving Green, 28, of Cleveland and Thomas Sturgeon, 23, of Cincinnati.

Arraignment is pending for two other escapees, William Murphy, 29, of Hamilton, and Jerome Stanley, 22, of Detroit. Stanley is being held in Florida.

Attorneys told the court the inmates escaped from the institution because of improper treatment and warned that future escapes can be expected unless treatment improves.

Crashes With Guardrails Injure Three

Three people were injured in accidents involving guardrails, according to reports at the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Pamela L. Robinson, 24, Canal Winchester, and a passenger in her car, James Siegfried, 27, Columbus, were referred to doctors for minor injuries they suffered in a 9:50 p.m. Monday accident on the Winchester Rd. at Duvall Rd.

Ms. Robinson suffered lacerations to both knees, while Siegfried had a bump on his forehead.

According to the report of Deputy J. Phillip Brown, Ms. Robinson was southbound on the Winchester Rd. and in the process of making a right turn onto the Duvall Rd. when her car slid on loose gravel and struck a guardrail.

Christina Baldwin, 37, Route 1, Stoutsville, was admitted to Berger Hospital for observation after suffering a head injury, possibly a concussion, in a single car accident 5:10 a.m. Tuesday on Route 104, south of the West-Ford Rd. intersection.

She was taken to the hospital by the Scioto Squad.

Ms. Baldwin told Deputy Nick Franklin that she was northbound on Route 104 and lost control of her car while attempting to drive through a sharp curve in the road.

The car slid off the east side of the paved surface, crashed into a guardrail, and came to rest on top of the guardrail.

Goats Help Fight Fires

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — The National Forest Service is using domestic goats to maintain firebreaks in the brushlands of southern California's national forests. The goats are expected to provide an inexpensive and efficient way to prevent the spread of fires.

Goats were chosen, according to the National Automobile Club, because they eat brush not eaten by other livestock and because they crop it off close to the ground, clearing the areas in which they graze of the dried bushes and grass that provide fuel for fires.

To ensure that the goats clear only the areas set aside for firebreaks, they are penned at night and closely herded during the day.

Goats Help Fight Fires

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — The National Forest Service is using domestic goats to maintain firebreaks in the brushlands of southern California's national forests. The goats are expected to provide an inexpensive and efficient way to prevent the spread of fires.

Goats were chosen, according to the National Automobile Club, because they eat brush not eaten by other livestock and because they crop it off close to the ground, clearing the areas in which they graze of the dried bushes and grass that provide fuel for fires.

To ensure that the goats clear only the areas set aside for firebreaks, they are penned at night and closely herded during the day.

TOP PINS — Lancaster Women's Bowling Association Annual City Tournament is now being held at Prairie Lanes and the 20th Century Lanes in Lancaster. League officers and members of the board of directors are: from the left, Carol Batina, director; Alice Snider, secretary; Velden Smith, vice-president; Geneva Anderson, Eileen Cunningham, Nancy Dougherty and Elizabeth Longociu, directors; Fritzie Poling, president; Kitty Young, director; and Anne Coffland, proprietor of Prairie Lanes.

Patty Hearst . . .

her instructions, she said, "they told me I would be killed."

Miss Hearst spent four hours on the stand Monday and quietly implicated nearly a dozen persons in her underground odyssey, some dead, most still alive.

She said the April 24, 1974, taped communique in which she boasted of her role in the bank robbery was written by SLA member Angela Atwood.

During cross-examination, Browning handed her the brown-barreled, sawed-off M1 carbine she had wielded in the bank and asked if it was her weapon. She said it was, holding it with both hands and basing her identification on "the stock and the bolt."

Asked if the weapon was loaded during the robbery, she replied, "I believe it was." Bailey objected at that point but was overruled, and the defendant later said she wasn't certain.

Miss Hearst sat emotionless through much of the testimony, sipping water from a styrofoam cup and occasionally waving her right hand softly in the air as she made a point.

She startled the courtroom twice, perhaps most dramatically with her declaration that she had been sexually assaulted by Wolfe when she was kept blindfolded in a closet for several weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping.

She said her June 7, 1974, taped eulogy of Wolfe and the other SLA members who died in the fire was written by the Harrises. In the tape, she proclaimed her love for Wolfe, calling him the "the gentlest, most beautiful man I've ever known."

On the witness stand, however, she portrayed Wolfe as callous.

Choking back tears, Miss Hearst said Wolfe accosted her in the closet a month after her kidnapping and wasn't the only SLA member to sexually abuse her. Bailey did not pursue the matter further.

TOP PINS — Lancaster Women's Bowling Association Annual City Tournament is now being held at Prairie Lanes and the 20th Century Lanes in Lancaster. League officers and members of the board of directors are: from the left, Carol Batina, director; Alice

Snider, secretary; Velden Smith, vice-president; Geneva Anderson, Eileen Cunningham, Nancy Dougherty and Elizabeth Longociu, directors; Fritzie Poling, president; Kitty Young, director; and Anne Coffland, proprietor of Prairie Lanes.

Patty Hearst . . .

their instructions, she said, "they told me I would be killed."

Miss Hearst spent four hours on the stand Monday and quietly implicated nearly a dozen persons in her underground odyssey, some dead, most still alive.

She said the April 24, 1974, taped communication in which she boasted of her role in the bank robbery was written by SLA member Angela Atwood.

During cross-examination, Browning handed her the brown-barreled, sawed-off M1 carbine she had wielded in the bank and asked if it was her weapon. She said it was, holding it with both hands and basing her identification on "the stock and the bolt."

Asked if the weapon was loaded during the robbery, she replied, "I believe it was." Bailey objected at that point but was overruled, and the defendant later said she wasn't certain.

Miss Hearst sat emotionless through much of the testimony, sipping water from a styrofoam cup and occasionally waving her right hand softly in the air as she made a point.

She startled the courtroom twice, perhaps most dramatically with her declaration that she had been sexually assaulted by Wolfe when she was kept blindfolded in a closet for several weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping.

She said her June 7, 1974, taped eulogy of Wolfe and the other SLA members who died in the fire was written by the Harrises. In the tape, she proclaimed her love for Wolfe, calling him the "gentlest, most beautiful man I've ever known."

On the witness stand, however, she portrayed Wolfe as callous.

Choking back tears, Miss Hearst said Wolfe accosted her in the closet a month after her kidnapping and wasn't the only SLA member to sexually abuse her. Bailey did not pursue the matter further.
